Working with Difficult Supervisees

This one-day supervision course is the first of a series of online supervision courses, organised by the Danish Society for Analytical Psychology in cooperation with the Jung Institute, Copenhagen. Each time we will invite a well-known international Jungian supervisor who will give a lecture and lead a master-class. In addition to this there will twice during the day be breakout groups with supervision of supervision, lead by experienced Jungian supervisors, and with 5 - 7 participants in each group. Participants are asked to bring cases for the breakout groups and the master-class. The supervision can be from both individual and group supervisory work.

We welcome participants from Denmark and from abroad who are trained as psychotherapists and/or Jungian psychoanalysts and have worked in clinical practice for at least three years. We welcome also those therapists and analysts who have begun to supervise and would like to learn more.

Working with Difficult Supervisees

As supervisors, we generally find ourselves lucky enough to work with some gifted supervisees where there is a supervisory space in which to work creatively together in the service of patients and the patient/therapist relationship. On other occasions, we find ourselves working with supervisees who cannot use supervision as a place to learn and develop and where difficulties arise within the supervisor/supervisee relationship. This day will begin with a presentation from Jan Wiener about some of the difficulties that can arise in supervision and how best to think about them. Participants are encouraged to bring examples of their difficult supervisees which can be explored in the breakout groups in the morning and afternoon as well as in the Masterclass, led by Jan Wiener, where the cases can be explored together within a large group setting.

*Jan Wiener is a Training Analyst and Supervisor at the Society of Analytical Psychology in London. Until recently, she was Director of Training there. She was Vice President of the IAAP from 2010 until 2013 with special responsibility for Developing Groups and Router Programmes in Eastern Europe. She has given papers and Masterclasses on the theme of supervision in the UK and in many other countries across the world. Her book on supervision, Supervising and Being Supervised: A Practice in Search of a Theory, edited with Richard Mizzen and Jenny Duckham, was published by Palgrave Macmillan in 2003.*
